NO. 31

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1937

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—A new hand-made flag of sizable proportions floats proudly in the State House rotunda, suspended by almost invisible wires from the massive Capital dome, attracting the attention of state employees and visitors alike. Not only was it presented to Governor Martin L. Davey for the state of Ohio by Mrs. Mary Wymer of Columbus, but it was made by her. Mrs. Wymer, a member of the L. N. Conard Woman's Relief corps, auxiliary of the Grand Army of the Republic, and also a World War mother, spent many hours cutting the stars and stripes and sewing them together and even dyed the brilliant red stripes and blue field from white material. The presentation of Ohio Glory to the governor was made at the conclusion of the state convention of the G. A. R., which was attended by a small but enthusiastic group of Ohio's few surviving members of the "war between the states."

Increased buying not only of necessities but of items that are classified as luxuries was responsible for the retail sales tax being within $2,000,000 on June 12 of the revenue obtained during the corresponding period of 1936, according to State Treasurer Clarence H. Kinsley. When the sales tax on food for consumption off the premises was repealed it was thought that the action would reduce the annual sales tax income by $12,000,000 in 1937 as compared to 1936, but the experts failed to consider the continued upswing in business and industrial activity and consequently in purchasing power, Treasurer Kinsley said. He reported sales of prepaid tax receipts from January 1 to June 12, 1937, totaling $21,539,345, compared to $23,563,496 for the corresponding 1936 period when all food purchases were taxable.

A telephone co-ordination program that is under way by the state will make most departments, bureau, divisions and offices, including the Senate and the House of Representatives, available by calling one number, Main 1263, after about August 1. All offices in the Wyandott building, which is leased by the state, and most of the offices in the Capitol will go through the State Office building, and the state auditor's office will retain their own trunk lines. The state treasurer's and attorney general's office have not decided whether they will go on the main switchboard or whether they will have their separate lines. The new plan will result in substantial savings, telephone officials said.

Results of a survey in Ohio cities of more than 100,000 population, Cleveland and Cincinnati excepted, are being compiled into a report which will serve as a reference guide for a board of nine members which will set up a minimum wage scale for women and minors in Ohio's retail stores. It was announced by Director Ora B. Chapman of the State Department of Industrial Relations. A portion of the survey disclosed that nine per cent of the women and minors employed in the retail establishments receive a weekly wage of less than $5; fourteen per cent are paid less than $3 weekly; thirty per cent get less than $13 each week; and only ten per cent, including women holding executive positions, are earning more than $17 weekly. Approximately 60,000 women and minors will be affected by the action of the board, which will be composed of three representatives of the employers, three of the employees and three representing the public in general, Director Chapman asserted.

Recent heavy rains which amounted to cloudbursts in several cases have taken a heavy toll among wild-life, particularly in Wood, Henry, Hancock and Hardin counties, according to field reports made to Conservation Commissioner Lawrence Woodwell. Many other sections suffered to a lesser degree. The toll was heaviest among newly-hatched pheasants and young rabbits. Until the storms the prospect of an extra-large number of pheasants was in view Commissioner Woodwell stated.

Ohio's old-age pension system went under the microscope of an investigating Senate subcommittee, Saturday. Chairman E. Matthews Steele (D, Clinton) said the inquiry would seek to determine how many, if any, pensions were being granted for political reasons; why Gov. Martin L. Davey found it "convenient" to raise pensions $10 a month during the past campaign; whether the number of pensioners could be limited, and how to weed out "chiselers."

He had a subpoena issued for Fred M. Pickens, pension division business administrator, declaring Pickens had been "eluding" the committee.

There Are Still A Few Left—One At Least

In speaking of nice people we understand two of our local citizens discovered a Columbus policeman that is not of the hard-boiled type so often reported on duty in most cities.

This policeman was so genteel, soft spoken, considerate and open hearted that even though one of the party, the driver of the automobile might have been exceeding the speed limit, he just could not write a ticket that would mean a visit or the customary "Good Morning, Judge."

Howard Arthur with Teddy Richards, after a business trip to Columbus were headed home on a certain day last week, but when near the outskirts of the city, had the pleasure of making an acquaintance of the man who rides the motorcycle and wears the brass buttons.

The usual invitation to stop was made and the usual innocent and unintentional infraction of the law was admitted if there was such an infraction. In fact "innocence was personified and nobody knew nothing."

The country boys did their part to a queen's taste but such should be the case where "practice makes perfect." A recent trip in Indiana was as much a success of pleading innocence as in Columbus.

The officer discharged his duty with a warning and as the boys headed homeward, Teddy remarks, "Now wasn't the policeman such a nice fellow?"

The warning should be, "All policemen are not such nice fellows."

Warning of 1924 By George D. Black

We reprint from the "Columbus Dispatch" a few days ago, an article that had been sent that paper which appeared in the "Ohio Farmer," dated October 18, 1924. It was from the pen of George D. Black, deceased, who lived for several years north of Yellow Springs, where he operated a farm near Whitehall. Mr. Black had been educated for the ministry and was a fluent speaker and writer on farm as well as economic topics. For several years he had assignments as a farmer institute speaker.

"This constitution has worked well. From time to time amendments have been added as they were needed, but they in no way have changed the fundamental principles of the constitution. There it stands today the greatest state document on this earth, admired by intelligent lovers of free government everywhere."

"But the value of our constitution is not appreciated by all the elements that make up our body politic. There are radical people here who don't like it. It stands in the way of their destructive intentions. They want to do away with it, or so change it that it will cease to be our safe-guard against the attack of those who would overthrow our form of government."

"In recent years an element of lawlessness has sought to lay its hands on the constitution and fashion it to its purpose. Its aim is to take away the safeguards guaranteed by the three-fold checks and balances and make the decisions of the supreme court subject to the review and reversal of congress. This means nothing less than making the legislative branch of government dominant over the judicial. In fact, the judicial would cease to function as an interpreter of the constitution. And the very thing that the founders of this government feared and sought to provide against would come to pass. The constitution would be whatever the passion of the hour might dictate, or whatever the whims and caprices of a group put in a position of supremacy in congress might decide."

"Our lives and our liberties would be exposed to the radical notions of any group that might for a day have the whip hand. The constitution would no longer be the bulwark of our safety and our happiness, but the football of clashing elements and of congealed orators who might be able to sway crowds and get themselves into places of authority."

"Democracies are not always wise. The voice of the people is not always the voice of God. Sometimes it is far from it."

"The founders of this government were long-headed men, and they were under no delusion in regard to human nature and its inconstant propensity. They intended, and wisely so, to make it impossible for the passions of a day or the plausible appeals of self-seeking politicians to imperil the liberties of the people or destroy the government."

"And so they set the constitution there as a Bill of Rights, our Magna Charta, and they set the supreme court there by the side of it to see that it is not violated by any hasty or ill-considered law making. Give congress the power to disregard the constitution in the making of laws and the constitution will cease to exist. It will be a mere scrap of paper. In that event no man's life would be safe. No man's farm would be safe. No man's house would be safe. No man's job would be safe. Any or all of these might be voted away by any tumultuous bunch of legislators who happened to be temporarily clothed with power."

"There is no more reckless folly than that of the pretension that wrecking the constitution is a service to the 'common people.' Why, the constitution is the high water mark of the achievement of the common people in their struggle against caste, against special privilege and oppression. Destroy it and you destroy the precious prize of a thousand years of their endeavor to get their hands upon the scepter of government. That prize, won through ages of blood and tears, our fathers placed in the constitution of these states, and then wisely set the supreme court there beside it to watch it and to see that it was not flung by profane and reckless hands."

"Doubtless we do many foolish things as a people, but surely we are not so added in our wits as to lend ourselves of our own life and liberty, of our property, of our freedom, of our freedom of speech and of the press and of our choice and exercise of religion. If we invoke chaos, we shall deserve all the evils that will inevitably follow chaos. If we are determined to be Russified, the direct road that way is the removal of the safeguard of the supreme court."

LEWIS' UNION ASK CONTROL NEWSPAPERS

Some three hundred editors and managers of various daily newspapers from all parts of the United States represented through eleven regional organizations held a most unusual meeting in Chicago this week to discuss the demand that editors and reporters on the pay roll belong to the American Newspaper Guild, an organization under the CIO, headed by Lewis.

Recently a meeting of the Guild was held in St. Louis when demands were made for a closed shop, that is only union editorial writers and reporters of every description, even for the picture pages and the screen news writers. The news reporters on the radio broadcasts now have such a union.

Newspapers that are forced to recognize such a union will have no control over the editorial policy, neither can the management hire or fire for infraction of the office rules. The union will dictate the policy. If any one branch of employees go on strike all branches must go out at the same time.

The Guild at the St. Louis meeting endorsed the Farmer-Labor political party and pledged its members to support candidates on that ticket in reporting and editorial writing. The party is controlled by Communists in New York city, who would dictate policy and virtually control newspapers where the union exists regardless of the actual ownership.

The Guild has had the backing of the New Deal and strange to say more than a score of Democratic newspapers have already been forced to sign the Guild contract rather than face a strike of all employees.

The Guild has also endorsed the Communistic war in Spain, the packing of the Supreme Court by Roosevelt and also pledged its support to the scores of strikes now in progress.

With the press of the country tied down by Roosevelt-Lewis and the Communist party, freedom of religion, speech, the press, and freedom of assembly would be denied as they are now in Russia, Italy and Germany.

At a recent press conference in Washington Roosevelt expressed himself as objecting to the manner in which newspapers were reporting activities of the New Deal. When asked as to his idea he suggested that the government should have a column in every newspaper to express its side of every question. The difference between the Roosevelt plan of control and that in either of the other countries mentioned is that no publisher dare give his views but must carry nothing but what the dictator of that country decrees.

The Chicago meeting was the most unusual and the first of its kind ever held in the United States. Northern publishers as well as Southern, Western and Eastern gave unanimous support to a movement to resist the Guild or any other demands of like nature from any source whatsoever.

Prevent Hog Cholera Says Dr. Zimmer

This is the time to prevent summer and fall losses from hog cholera, according to a bulletin issued today by State Veterinarian, F. A. Zimmer.

Last year's hog cholera outbreak left the virus of the disease in many localities, and the transportation of hogs over wide areas during the last year and present flood conditions may further spread the danger of fresh infection, Dr. Zimmer's bulletin warns.

"If spring pigs are vaccinated, around weaning time, they may be expected to develop maximum immunity to the disease. There is the further advantage that less serum and virus are needed for young pigs, and the vaccination therefore costs the farmer much less."

"The hog raiser who fails to have his hogs immunized is the one who pays America's hog cholera toll of $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 every year. Cholera generally strikes where it is least expected, and as there is no cure for the disease, after it has developed, vaccination is doubly wise."

The bulletin suggests that vaccination should be done by a veterinarian, and only after hogs have been examined to determine whether they are in condition to undergo the immunization treatment.

GOVERNOR DAVEY TAKES THE BIT IN HIS TEETH

It is with some pride and a large degree of satisfaction that we can comment favorably on the action of Governor Davey in using the power of the militia to protect independent steel workers that wanted to return to work but feared their lives from union anarchists. Complimenting the Ohio Democratic governor for this act may bring surprise in many quarters but it is due him even though we have been openly critical of his administration management, particularly his 90 million dollar budget program.

Some months ago the Governor made a campaign statement that he was proud of the fact that he had never used the state militia against labor unions and that he never would. That statement sounded much like the barn-yard prattle we get every few days from New Deal headquarters where John L. Lewis tells the President of the United States what he will and will not do. A campaign statement when there was no labor disturbance might be different than what is expected today.

While Gov. Earl of Pennsylvania and Gov. Murphy of Michigan were playing into the hands of Roosevelt and Lewis and union labor was destroying property and taking lives of workers who refused to join the union, Gov. Davey joined hands, upon advice from Washington by telephone communication with the powers that be and ordered steel mills closed.

It was not so many days until Governor Davey discovered he had been duped by Roosevelt, Perkins, Lewis and the rest of the Communist hierarchy. The contest between labor leaders and steel company management was a farce for the real fight was to force independent steel workers into the union. Men were kidnapped, others slugged, many of these men had their homes bombed, but public sentiment was against the labor union warfare and here Governor Davey must have credit for ordering the steel mills open for work, the militia not to be used for or against the union but for the protection of thousands of men who were anxious to get back to work having been forced out by false leaders.

"We cannot waver," said Gov. Davey. "Our clear duty is to give every assistance to the local authorities to prevent lawlessness of every description as it relates to the strike situation. * * * The rights of all citizens must be protected. * * * Government must not abdicate to any who challenge its existence."

This is two-fisted sane talk. The Governor of Ohio is taking no sides in any quarrel; he is simply upholding the law as it relates to everyone. This he makes clear when he says:

"The right to work is sacred. The right to strike is equally valid. Those who want to return to their employment shall enjoy that privilege without being molested. Those who wish to remain on strike certainly are entitled to do so and to continue any and all lawful practices."

"Law and order are so elemental in their relation to the rights of men and the preservation of organized society that they rise above every other consideration among a free people."

Nothing could be more reasonable than this statement. It has no concern with the merits of the dispute between the steel companies and the CIO. It is concerned only with the right of every man, employer, employee, unionist, non-unionist, and innocent bystander to enjoy the protection of government against interference and violence, as he goes about his daily business.

That the action of the Governor has broken the back of the unlawful element forcing the strike there can be no question. The union leaders have not a leg to stand on when it comes to constitutional government. The union is under the power of a Communist dictator that respects neither civil or moral law and worst of all he has the political backing of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the beneficiary of the $500,000 campaign gift last election, when Lewis was to be repaid with governmental support of the murderous outfit behind the union racket.

Gov. Davey even goes farther in his statement and lays an open indictment against Sec. Perkins, the Communist labor secretary in the Roosevelt cabinet, when he says he wanted him (the Gov.) to kidnap the managers of the steel companies and hold them until they agreed to sign the Lewis union contract. It is as unlawful for a governor to kidnap a citizen as it is for any known criminal to commit such a deed. Meantime while citizens were demanding that men be permitted to return to work the Hyde Park Squire presided over a Democratic love feast and week-end drunk for Congress on an isle in the Potomac river where one congressman says beer was served. Gov. Davey was evidently moved to do his sworn duty. Roosevelt had nothing to say because public sentiment was driving Lewis and his murderous outfit out of the picture.

ROMEO AND JULIET IN ECONOMIC ROYALIST SETTING

No young couple ever plighted their troth before so many millions of interested citizens than did Ethel duPont, of "economic royalist" fame as Juliet, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., the modern Romeo from the house of the New Dealers, where hatred for economic success was born and class distinction a part of the New Deal religion.

While love has had its way and the same thousands that have discussed this marriage sat in wonderment over what King Franklin would do, there has been wishes for the greatest success for the young couple.

As for the two interested families that have been tied only by an imaginary cotton cord they are still as far apart as Shakespeare's Capulets and Montagues. The house of duPont and the house of Roosevelt just will not unite even though loving hearts stand between in the role of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

The duPonts have been pictured by the Roosevelts as a scum that has covered the economic sea, all of which was a part of the New Deal program of developing class distinction. The duPonts have had a successful business career as success is measured under the New Deal dispensation. Roosevelt once headed a company that marketed worthless German bonds to American investors but the same yard stick was not in use those days. The duPonts have been handicapped when it comes to the unusual, so far as we learn no elder duPont ever wrote in his will that his son for his natural lifetime should have a guardian in the form of a trust company.

Who can tell? Some day a Roosevelt might be handling the duPont millions. If he adopts and follows the duPont tradition that opportunity may get in his way. If he accepts the New Deal doctrine of spending everything he has and what everybody else has, the line of demarcation between the house of duPont and the house of Roosevelt will always be visible.

The consumer is no longer the "forgotten man." He is the fellow that is paying for the noble experiment in Communist government in this country.

Vice President John N. Garner, who abdicated the throne in the Roosevelt dynasty, and returned to his home in Texas, following a break with the King, gives out a report again this week that he will not return to Washington.

State Auditor Ferguson hold up pay check for $400 to an O. S. U. professor, who is on leave of absence to take on extra work for the social security board in Columbus at a monthly salary of $450. The Auditor says the law prohibits holding two offices at the same time. The Auditor may be flirting with defeat for questioning any New Deal plan of spending.

The lifetime savings of several Xenians will make the county capital take on metropolitan airs. Under both federal and state laws inheritance taxes are collected from estates, the former not invading the $5,000 field. The state has several brackets of schedules to eat into an estate. Xenia's wealthiest citizen was Miss Emma King and the state will take $87,000, the New Deal $100,000, while Xenia city will receive about $43,000, choice sums to be extracted because the maiden lady chose to be independent rather than dependent and save something for the "rainy day." The city will also get a big slice from the estates of Mrs. Harrison Baker and Mrs. W. D. Crosey. All told the city of Xenia will get about $75,000 according to unofficial estimates. The King taxes have already been paid.

Xenia city authorities will erect a modern city building from the proceeds of inheritance taxes, along with a 45 per cent gift from Santa Claus down in Washington on a $105,000 project. No bond issue will be necessary, if Santa makes a donation.

The inheritance tax is a wonderful thing to everybody except the family that must stand the loss. The fellow that applauds such a tax today may be the same chap that belches a grudge against both the state and local taxing districts if he happens to fall heir to the savings of some one else. We never could see the justice of taxing a thrift after a man or woman are dead. Some years ago we engaged in argument with a member of the legislature just previous to the passage of the Ohio law. Here is how his estate ended. Shortly before the legislator's death the sheriff sold his large farm. He had been so busy trying to place the arm of the state into the other fellow's pocket that he lost everything he had accumulated and had been left to him by his father. A son has been on government relief. It's all a sad story but true that the fellow that is always trying to manage his neighbors affairs usually finds himself engulfed in failure.

In conversation with a well-known dentist in a neighboring city last week we learned that he had made effort to get a crippled girl of tender years in the famous Warm Springs Foundation, Georgia. Through contact with the head of the institution the dentist was informed that it would cost $80 a week to keep the child in the Roosevelt guided palace. The financial obligation was such that only a millionaire could afford such a charge and he then made a trip to St. Louis, where he laid the case before the head of the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children. This institution with eleven others are maintained for the care, treatment and education of deformed children that in after life they will be able to support themselves. If the family is unable to pay anything the child gets the treatment just the same but where a family is able to pay, a modest charge is made. Each member of the Shrine order pays two dollars a year to keep up the institution. Compare the Shrine plan for charity against the $80 a week charge at the Roosevelt institution. The little girl needing treatment is related to a number of well known Greene county families, several in Cedarville.

A representative of the advertising department of one of the well-known advertising agencies in talking to a group of publishers gave a vivid picture of what the strike actually means in dollars and cents to not only the newspaper but the local agent. When the labor union leader orders his members out on a strike he is not only doing injury to the manufacturer, or stockholder of the company, but is tabling local business in the back. The advertising appropriation for motor cars is based on the number of cars sold, a certain sum being set aside for that purpose. If the cars cannot be made due to a strike then the newspaper suffers. The heaviest load falls on the local dealer of cars affected by labor strikes. If the factory is closed down there is no need of steel, and this puts steel employees on forced vacation. The local dealer must have cars to sell his customers otherwise he cannot take care of his overhead represented in his rent for garage or salesroom, or taxes, insurance and income from investment in his real estate. The local dealer must have salesmen and he must have employees in his garage. If he cannot get cars for his customers he cannot keep his employees on the pay roll and have anything left for himself. Almost every community has one or more automobile agencies so you can figure how this strike business hurts business for everyone. Its about time to conclude that the Lewis gang is no different and no better than that headed at one time by Al Capone, other than the latter operated without government protection. Lewis has the President of the United States and a few governors working for him, at least that is the opinion of a large part of the American people, and the President has done nothing yet to convince them otherwise.

The Roosevelt packed labor board to hear charges and counter charges between the steel companies and labor leaders, failed as completely as it was possible to make it, in forcing the company management to come to a agreement with the labor anarchists. When steel said it would never sign a labor union contract that the Wagner law did not provide for, then the public became interested after a lull in the harmony put out by the Communist element. Today the nation seems to be awake. Public sentiment is making itself felt and even a few jelly fish governors that tried to ride the Communist jackass to win popular approval, discovered themselves dumped alongside the road to common sense. The Ohio member of that board Charles Taft, Cincinnati, son of a former president, came out of the noble Roosevelt experiment with a stained reputation in political and economic affairs. The one son whom Ohio has had good reason to follow, will now find himself in the same class as that of a brother, Robert Taft, Cincinnati, who is part of the Republican dead wood that is keeping the party below the water's level. Robert is of the old Cox-Hynicka gang in Hamilton county and wants to run for U. S. Senator, and Charles has 'prained his back trying to carry the Roosevelt-Lewis Communist labor union demands. All that can be written about the Cleveland labor meeting is that Charles was found in bad company on a dirty mission.

Censorship may not be bold but it is just around the corner. For instance over in England, the government did not permit motion pictures of the Duke of Windsor's wedding to be shown. Over here the public witness everything. Over in London pictures were shown on the movie screen of the Chicago steel riot when strikers murdered innocent steel workers wanting to return to work but refusing to join the union. In this country the pictures were held up, not from direct order of constituted authorities but from head of the union. Radio news commentators are subject to the same censorship if union labor leaders speak the word. Last but not least is the "guild" a painted term for labor union of reporters and editorial writers. Large city newspapers now find their editorial offices unionized and under the terms of a contract even the owner of the paper cannot dictate to a union or guild editorial writer. So far outspoken Democratic papers backing Roosevelt have felt the pinch of the "guild" dictation. This is as it should be for anybody or a thing that can stomach Roosevelt - Lewis - Perkins should get the first dose of what is intended for others. We know some very prominent Democratic publishers that have heretofore been boss of their shop but today get orders indirectly from John L. Lewis.

John L. Lewis head of the CIO unions has started to form a union of all government employees with the sanction of the New Deal. More than 800,000 men and women are employed by the government, some 400,000 being put on the pay roll by the economical Roosevelt administration. Out in Illinois the farm element in the state legislature is fighting a Lewis bill that would make it illegal for even the owner of a house, barn or chicken coop, to use even a farm hand to do painting unless he first passed the necessary requirements and was licensed by the state. In Chicago more than 10,000 city employees are now members of the CIO and Mayor Kelly is asking the legislature authority for taxation to meet an increase of salaries amounting to three million dollars which the union demands and have threatened to strike. If only the supporters of Roosevelt-Lewis and the New Deal could be forced to pay for this Communist program it might not last long.

Heavy Damage To North Ohio Crops

Crops in northern Ohio as we viewed them this week following the heavy rains and floodwaters are in a bad condition. From Logan county north to Toledo we find no such crops as we have in this section. Thousands of acres of all kinds of crops suffered from standing water. The flat country in northern Ohio as well as Indiana has probably suffered more this year from an excess of rain than by drought last year. Many fields of corn have been worked down and sown to soy beans.

The grand jury has returned indictments, eight persons who were named and two secret. James Robertson, Osborn, operating motor car without owner's consent. Forest Nooks, colored, charged with receiving stolen property, 80 chickens belonging to Howard Gresswell being in his possession. Elijah Gilbert cutting with intent to kill. James Childers charged with conversion of property to defraud the owner. Harry Tarr forgery. Forty-seven witnesses were examined.

Sold—14,000 miles from home

It's a long way from any dairy farm in America to Chhengmal, Siam.

By railroad and steamer and pack train the distance is more than 14,000 miles. Yet products from American dairy farms are used in Siam. Each year millions of pounds are bought and used in remote places throughout the world.

In 1897 Gail Borden's "Eased" milk first opened the way for world-wide selling of dairy products. Foreign outlets for American milk are the result of modern sales and research pioneering.

Every million pounds of milk produced that finds a market in foreign lands, further supports the flow of milk money back to the farms of America.

Choosing her parents' forty-first wedding anniversary as her nuptial day, Miss Regina Rose Smith, of Xenia, became the bride of Mr. James Thomas Avramoff, of Springfield, in a ceremony beautifully solemnized in the Little Lutheran Chapel on the Wittenberg College campus, Springfield, Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. W. E. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, officiated at the single ring ceremony in the presence of seventy-five guests. The chancel was decorated with roses, lilies, lilies and blue delphinium for the service and lighted tapers in tall candleabra burned on either side of the altar.

A thirty-minute program of nuptial music was played on the organ by Mr. Leroy Linn, who also played softly throughout the service.

If You are a Lot Owner You Have a Direct Interest

There is something more in owning a lot in any cemetery than just a burial lot. You first should make your selection where you are reasonably sure proper care will be given not only your lot but all lots. Many cemeteries have just such management and some do not.

How many people have really stopped to think what it takes to keep a well organized cemetery in good condition?

Such a cemetery must keep the grass mowed and high grass trimmed from around the monuments and head-stones. Some years a cemetery must be mowed fifteen or eighteen times during the season. The roadways must be clean and well kept. The surroundings all reflect that which the lot owner takes pride for a well-kept cemetery.

That which adds to the attractiveness of a cemetery is beautiful shade trees. Evergreens and shrubbery all of which is placed and under the care of the proper authorities.

Monuments and head-stones are set by the employees under orders of the Board of Trustees to meet certain requirements, not altogether for the Board but to give the best service over a long period of years. This cemetery was the first in this part of Ohio to adopt the six-inch cement base extension plan to make a more substantial base and give all stones the proper setting.

These are just some of the things the Board of Trustees of Massies Creek Cemetery have adopted and put in force over a period of years—all for the purpose of building for future maintenance. Whenever a rule is changed or orders given on any plan adopted it is considered from the standpoint of the future.

How your Board can continue this program will be told in a forth-coming announcement. Meantime if you are not a lot owner have you ever considered that such is a part of your duty to provide for the future?

Why Not Make a Choice of a Lot Soon?
